

Kekuhaupio
Hoku o Hawaii
Oct. 27, 1921

The chiefs were easily distinguished from the commoners [in battle] because they wore feather capes and there were feathered helmets on their heads, made of the feathers of Hawaiian birds.

HEN: Material Culture. Feather Work.

Translation from Kekuhaupio. Hoku o Hawaii, October 27, 1921.

Translation by Mary Kawena Pukui

No Reproduction Without Permission. Bishop Museum Archives.